Bay-Waveland schools honored by Washington in "Coast Encounters"

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District has been honored by NASA headquarters in Washington, D.C. for its participation in the "Coast Encounters" program—and the program has not even started.

Wendy Rupp, a Bay High teacher who is serving as the district's coordinator for the program, said the district was selected as the one planning the most extensive participation and will therefore be provided with some speakers and exhibits which will not appear elsewhere in the four counties involved in "Coast Encounters."

The full title of the program is "Coast Encounters: A Space-Age Adventure in Science Literacy for the Mississippi Gulf Coast." It is being provided through NASA's community education division and is designed to reach students in all of the 138 schools in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Pearl River counties.

Rupp said the Bay-Waveland district decided to aggressively pursue the program due to the proximity of John C. Stennis Space Center.

Preparations for the "Coast Encounters" activities have already begun. Events begin this week, but an official opening ceremony has been set for 1 p.m. April 20 in the Bay High gymnasium.

According to Rupp, all of the district's students, which number about 2,000, are expected to be there. Other schools can not be invited due to the seating capacity of the gym, but will be invited to tour exhibits later.

The opening ceremony will be highlighted by a 26-foot model of the space station which is being constructed by industrial arts classes at Bay Junior High. The model will be assembled and hung from the ceiling of the Bay High gym, and when "Coast Encounters" is over, will be donated to Stennis Space Center as a permanent exhibit for its visitor's center museum.

Rupp said the U.S. Army National Guard has also planned a helicopter landing and its "eight flags" ceremony, which involves nine men in period costumes displaying the eight flags that have flown over Mississippi.

Other activities include exhibits at the gym, speakers, tours of exhibits at Edgewater Mall, teacher workshops, computer demonstrations, a poster contest and an air show parade of 120 planes flying over the entire coast on April 29.

On Saturday, April 22, the exhibits at the Bay High gym will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"About half the exhibits will be provided by places like the (Stennis Space Center) visitor's center, NORDA, Computer Services Corporation and Martin-Marietta," Rupp said. "The other half will be student exhibits."

The military is getting in on the act, providing the helicopters, an artillery van where students will have a chance to try out an M-16, a weapons display from a musket to a laser gun

Bay employees given job security by bill

BY D.C. HARVILL

Bay St. Louis city employees no longer will have to fear for their jobs every time the political climate changes.

Bay Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. announced Friday that a local and private bill signed by Governor Ray Mabus authorizes the city to establish a civil service system.

The system will provide protection to workers in all city departments against politically motivated job action.

The system will be created in the form of an ordinance, which will have to be approved by the city council.

The motion to pursue creation of a civil service program passed unanimously before the council earlier this year.

The ordinance will be ready for the council's vote in May, so the system can be in effect when the new administration takes office on July 1, Frankiewicz said.

Department heads will be exempt from protection under the ordinance.

Most civil service systems are created after a problem arises, but the effort to create one for Bay St. Louis originated with the city council, Frankiewicz said.

"The administration felt it was better to create the system before we have a problem," said Frankiewicz.

"Since civil servants are commonly used as political footballs, we could see the possibility of problems coming up in this election," the mayor explained.

Under current laws, employees have no protection, according to Frankiewicz.

"You could fire them because you didn't like them, or because they didn't vote for you. One of our most important rights, though, is the right to political expression. Employees should be able to vote however they want and to campaign or not campaign for whomever they wish," the mayor said.

While the system will provide employees with job security, it is not designed to promote inadequate performance.

"The philosophy of the system is to promote job security not as an end in itself, but as a means of enhancing the city's work force. The legislation specifically calls for improved employee performance and discourages static productivity," the mayor's press release stated.

Under the system, employees must receive written notification of adverse job action specifying the reason for the action. The employee will be granted the right to an administrative hearing before the mayor.

An independent civil service commission will be established to serve as an appeals board in the event the matter cannot be solved at the administrative level.

Money may be saved and court action against the city averted if the matter can be handled on a local level, the mayor explained.

If further action is required, the employee may appeal through the circuit court.

"This had been a dream of mine before I'd even thought of running for office. Over the years I've seen people who were very capable lose their jobs. A new administration takes office and they are gone," said District Four Councilman John Wilkerson, coordinator and spearhead for the effort to create the system.

The bill was introduced simultaneously in the State House of Representatives by Congressman J.P. Compretta and in the State Senate by Senator Gene Taylor, both of Bay St. Louis.

EDA states again school cannot use airport's utilities

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has received another letter confirming that a new school cannot be connected to utilities at Stennis Industrial Airpark.

Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas said the letter from the Economic Development Administration, a division of the U.S. Department of Commerce, is the second "no" the board has received.

Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph, however, said he is planning to contact the EDA for further instructions. Randolph said it is possible to connect the school to the Kiln Water System and to build a wastewater treatment facility for the school, but said "it seems kind of a shame to do it when there's a lift station 30 feet away."

According to Cuevas, the second EDA letter was obtained to clarify the answer given in the first letter, especially in view of "problems like the recent one with the bonds in Biloxi."

Cuevas said the EDA has again informed the supervisors that they would have to repay more than $1 million in grant funds if the school is connected to the industrial park's utilities.

The water and sewerage system was constructed for the county's port and harbor commission using grant funds that were earmarked for economic development.

According to the EDA letter, signed by Atlanta Regional Counsel Jerry C. Foster, a school does not fit into the category of economic development.

Cuevas said the board was disappointed in the answer, because the airport systems do have the capacity to serve the school and would have generated some revenue for the port and harbor.

However, Foster's letter stated, "The project was designed with little or no excess capacity and it was our understanding that the proposed use by the high school would use a substantial proportion of the existing capacity."

"This, in effect, would be using the project facilities for a purpose inconsistent with the purposes for which the grant was made."

He enclosed a copy of the terms of the 1978 agreement, which give the EDA the authority to suspend the grant or loan, prohibit the grantee from incurring additional obligations, or terminate the grant or loan.

In this case, the loan money has already been spent and the project completed, which is why repayment would be the required corrective action for noncompliance with the terms.

LOCAL BRIEF

NAACP FORUM

The Hancock County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will host a "Meet the Candidate Open Forum" Wednesday, April 12, 7-9 p.m. at St. Rose Parish Center, 301 Necaise Ave., Bay St. Louis. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Bay dedicating new Senior Citizens/RSVP quarters

A dedication ceremony for expanded and renovated quarters of the Hancock County Senior Citizens Center and Retired Senior Volunteers Program is scheduled for Tuesday. The public is invited to attend the 10:20 to noon ceremony at the Valena C. Jones complex on Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis.

Renovations include new administrative offices for both programs, handicapped-access restrooms, a conference room, central heat and air-conditioning and carpeting throughout. Total cost of the project was $45,000, of which $5,700, for flooring and air-conditioning, was provided by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The renovations represent one phase of an overall renovation and relocation program being conducted by the city. The first efforts in relocation and renovation included the moves of the city's building inspectors to City Hall and the Hancock County Civil Defense offices to the former county jail building adjoining the county courthouse.

A new police and fire department complex is being constructed in the newly renovated Valena C. Jones Gym.

Special programs set at John C. Stennis Space Center Visitors Center

Special tours and programs will be on tap during a three-week period at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center Visitors Center in Hancock County, in conjunction with the NASA Community Involvement Program entitled, "Coast Encounters: A Space Age Adventure in Science Literacy for the Mississippi Gulf Coast," slated for April 16 through May 5.

"Although the Visitors Center is open every day of the year except Christmas, the three-week period during Coast Encounters will give visitors a more in-depth look at the educational opportunities offered to students of the Mississippi Gulf Coast by NASA and the Stennis Space Center," said Mack Herring NASA public affairs officer at the Stennis Space Center.

NASA's Community Involvement Programs such as "Coast Encounters" focuses the national resources of the entire space agency on particular communities in order to stimulate interest among students to pursue careers in aerospace engineering and space technology. Major emphasis is placed on supporting education in the subjects of space and science.

During the program set for the Gulf Coast, NASA will provide astronauts, aerospace lecturers and NASA officials who will give presentations in over 100 schools in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Pearl River counties. Space exhibits will be on display at various locations along the Gulf Coast.

Special programs at the Stennis Center Visitors Center will include special presentations by guest lecturers in the field of space and science; giveaways of balloons, pins and T-shirts; and expanded tours of the space center, which will include tours of the test complex area where all main engines that power the Space Shuttle are tested and proven flight worthy before each launch.

Stennis officials will dedicate "Challenger Park" on April 24. The project, which is in the development stage, will consist of further additions and renovations to the picnic area on the northern side of the Visitors Center. Plans are to erect a pavilion, additional picnic tables and outdoor exhibits.

Teachers visiting the Space Center during "Coast Encounters" will receive special educational packets, which will include photos and comprehensive information about education in space technology.

Foreigners reminded of AFIDA rules

All foreigners who have bought or sold agricultural land in Pearl River-Hancock County must report the transaction to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service within 90 days, said Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director.

Gennin reminds foreign investors that a report must be filed if all or part of the agricultural land is sold or title is transferred to another person.

"We are responsible for monitoring how much agricultural land in Pearl River-Hancock County is owned or controlled by foreign individuals or interests," said Gennin. "Those who are late reporting or who fail to report could face a civil penalty of up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the interests held in the agricultural land."

According to state tourism officials, the Visitors Center at the Stennis Center is one of the most popular tourism attractions in the state. A total 106,331 visitors toured the Stennis Space Center during 1988. That figure was an increase of more than 10,000 from the previous year.

An even greater number of visitors is expected to tour the center this year. Visitors Center officials have already experienced a significant increase in the number of visitors during the first quarter of this year when compared to the first quarter of 1988.

Authorized by the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA), a foreign disclosure report must be filed when a single foreign individual, organization, or government holds a direct or indirect interest of 10 percent or more; when a group of foreign individuals, organizations and governments not acting in concert, hold an aggregate of 50 percent interest or more in agricultural land.

"We also remind county government offices, realtors, attorneys and others in real estate transactions of our AFIDA obligations," said Gennin, "and ask for their cooperation and assistance by notifying our office of all foreign investor land transactions."

Foreigners have reported owning about 12.5 million acres of land in the United States.

that Rupp says will be "most popular, bar none," and a high-technology, 21st Century-style military jeep she says "looks like something from TV, straight out of 'Star Trek'."

There will be a satellite exhibit that had to be arranged with NASA back in January.

"We had to go all the way to Washington to clear some of these things," Rupp said. "It is definitely going to be worth the time and difficulty involved."

One thing which has not been finalized is an inflatable spacewalk for the younger children. Sponsors are needed for the walk, which costs $75 per day. Anyone who would like to help may call Rupp at 467-6023.

"We are absolutely the only school doing anything remotely this elaborate," she said. "A lot of what we got was simply because we asked first."

Dr. Margaret Finarelli, who represents the national office of NASA's educational division, had said she would visit only one school.

"When she heard what we were planning, she said, 'That's the school I want to visit.' We feel very honored," Rupp added.

Jim McMurtry, Stennis Space Center's community education representative, will be at the Bay-Waveland School Board meeting Monday night to provide an update on "Coast Encounters" plans. The meeting begins at 7 p.m. in the superintendent's boardroom at Bay Senior High.

"The biggest day of all is the 24th," Rupp said. "That's when we'll have the NASA education people here," she said, explaining that these speakers are specially trained aeronautics engineers who give presentations that include "Mr. Wizard"-type demonstrations.

There will also be two "Teacher in Space" program candidates to give teacher workshops, former astronauts and Regina Cates from STARS Planetarium in Vancleave.

In addition, Rupp said the school district has two finalists in the "Coast Encounters" poster contest, Waveland Elementary first grader Robert Redford and Bay High ninth grader Shelly Starita. Their work will be part of the Edgewater Mall display, which opens April 16.

If Starita wins, she is eligible for a scholarship to NASA's annual Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala. Redford is too young to participate in Space Camp and participants in his age group have been offered a VIP tour of the facility, but Rupp is trying to get the prize changed to a delayed scholarship that will allow the winner to attend when he is old enough.

AARP Tax-Aide offers advice for older Americans

If you're an older American, be sure you're not missing out on some important tax benefits, says the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

For example, there's the "credit for the elderly or the disabled." This credit could reduce the taxes you pay if you are age 65 or older, or if you are disabled.

The credit is based on the taxpayer's income, filing status, age and spouse's age (if the taxpayer is married). To figure this credit, use IRS Schedule R.

If you're 65 or older or blind and do not itemize deductions, the Internal Revenue Service says that you may be entitled to take a standard deduction amount on your tax return for 1988 that is higher than the amount available to other taxpayers.

The standard deduction table in the 1040 instruction booklet can help you determine your deduction.

As an older American, you may not have to file a return. If you are single and age 65 or older, you generally need not file a 1988 return if your gross total income was less than $5,700.

If you would ordinarily file a joint return, and both you and your spouse are 65 or older, usually no return is required unless your joint income for 1988 was at least $10,100.

Are you thinking of selling your home? If you are age 55 or older, you may be able to take advantage of a once-in-a-lifetime $125,000 exclusion on the gain from the sale. For further information, see IRS publication 523 "Tax Information on Selling Your Home."

Free tax assistance is available to low and moderate income older people through AARP's Tax-Aide program. Tax-Aide volunteers are trained in cooperation with the IRS, and provide assistance from Feb. 1 to Apr. 15 each year. They can help you complete the necessary federal, state and local tax forms. To locate the Tax-Aide site nearest you, contact Maury Herman, the T-A coordinator, at 875-9767.

AARP is the nation's largest organization of Americans 50 and older, retired and working. The nonprofit, nonpartisan organization, based in Washington, D.C., offers a wide variety of membership benefits, legislative representation at federal and state levels, and educational community service programs carried out through a national network of volunteers and local chapters.

Space Center employees bid NASA administrator farewell

NASA Administrator Dr. James C. Fletcher met with employees Friday at the John C. Stennis Space Center to give his farewell address before he leaves the space agency next month.

Fletcher, who was brought back for a second term as administrator after the Challenger accident, says that with the successful conclusion of the third Space Shuttle mission since America returned to flight in September of last year, he feels that he can safely place the leadership of NASA in another's hands.

Fletcher told employees at the Stennis Center, "Thank you for all the help in times of trouble and all the superior work in our times of success. The turnaround of those engine turbo-pumps (for the flight of Discovery) was a minor miracle. I expect more minor miracles, in fact, many major ones year after year from the Stennis Space Center.

"You're all part of a unique team which is pretty important to the nation. The president knows that, and the nation knows that. We're building a cathedral. We're building a bridge to the stars. And, you're part of that. No part is less or more important than another. That's what it takes to do things as a team. It takes a lot of people working together."

Stennis Director Roy Estess expressed on behalf of the administrator, "Dr. Fletcher is due a large debt of gratitude by his country, by NASA and by those of us who work at Stennis. He has indeed left an indelible mark on this agency."

Fletcher first served as NASA administrator from April 1971 to May 1977. He was called back by President Reagan in May 1986 with a mandate to get the Space Shuttle flying again safely. By virtue of the two terms, Fletcher has served as NASA administrator longer than any other person.

Deputy Administrator Dale Myers and Rear Adm. Richard Truly, associate administrator for Space Flight, accompanied Fletcher during his farewell visit here.

The entourage met with a capacity crowd of employees in the Visitors Center auditorium and also with crews of NASA and engine personnel at the Space Shuttle Main Engine Test Complex before their departure.

Ahlers, Necaise attend UM substance abuse fundraiser

Two local students were special guests at the recent banquet at the Gulf Coast Coliseum to raise funds that will be used, in part, for substance abuse prevention programs at Gulf Coast schools.

Micah Necaise of Bay High School and Kyle Ahlers of Hancock North Central High School attended the gala, which raised nearly $35,000 to benefit the University of Mississippi's Bessie S. Speed Center for Alcohol and Drug Education, which has developed a statewide outreach program aimed at preventing substance abuse.

Necaise, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Necaise, and Ahlers, the son of Bill Ahlers and Mrs. Jane Hanshaw, were among 15 outstanding high school juniors in the Coast area invited to the banquet.

High school officials were contacted by banquet organizers and asked to recommend junior-level student leaders capable of serving as catalysts next year for drug education and peer counseling efforts in their high schools.

Deposit Guaranty National Bank underwrote the cost of the banquet so that all proceeds from ticket sales could go to prevention programs. Volunteers sold tickets to the affair at $1,000 a table.

The proceeds will endow educational programs on the Gulf Coast, provide training of abuse prevention volunteers for the area and finance development of educational materials.

Your local library—a wealth of information

Whom do you turn to when you need information, now? Is there one source which can supply the facts on just about any subject, without charging exorbitant fees?

National Library Week, April 9-15, offers a suggestion with Mississippi's theme 'Libraries—Invest in your Future.' This year's celebration emphasizes the help you can expect from a librarian, help that's hard to find anywhere else.

It would be impossible to be an expert on every subject, but librarians know where to look for the answers. And they tell you where they found them, so you can back up a decision, theme paper, or friendly wager, by citing a published source.

But without the proper investment of money for the resources to answer the questions you have, librarians cannot do the job they are professionally trained to do. Mississippi's libraries have made enormous strides in the past few years in trying to bring fast, efficient and accurate responses to their patrons' questions. But in order to keep up with the exploding growth of information, librarians need the proper tools, and these tools are expensive.

Librarians want businesses and organizations to know they have a reliable source of information without paying a fee. And families with young children, young students, and adults in the community receive the same professional expertise. But if the information is out-of-date, its usefulness declines dramatically.

Libraries need the proper funding to do the best job. Visit your library this week, and bring a friend. Find out what your library has to offer, and how you can help make it even better than it already is. You just might be surprised at what you can find there.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

A day many folks don't like to see will be here next weekend.

We are referring to the deadline for state and federal income taxes.

Deadlines are nothing new to us at the Echo, yet we have the same problems as most other folks when it comes to preparing our taxes.

This year I got started a little early and the only thing Jane and I have left to do is write the checks and mail the returns.

In conversations about town, there are still many folks who have not prepared their taxes yet.

All I can say is that April 15 is fast approaching.

The big topic of conversation this week has been the Hancock County Courthouse's appearance for the annual Spring Pilgrimage.

There were many hours of preparation for the Pilgrimage and we know Supervisor Lisa Cowan was one of those really involved in the courthouse's preparations.

Isn't it amazing what a little cleanup, a few gallons of paint and potted plants here and there, can do.

Also, we don't want to forget the help provided by several trustees from the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility in beautifying the Courthouse and its grounds.

The trustees worked very late several nights cleaning and painting the building's interior.

We say thanks to everyone for their help in preparing the courthouse for the Pilgrimage. We know there were many.

On Wednesday from 2 to 7 p.m. there will be a Blood Drawing at the Bourgeois-Stieffell-Ray American Legion Post No. 77, Coleman Avenue, Waveland.

A goal of 100 units has been set, according to Lin Rutherford, co-chairman for the drive.

The American Red Cross drawing, is one of several conducted each year in the area for the Hancock County Blood bank.

Rutherford indicated there is always a need for new donors.

Our local hospital is supplied with blood by the Red Cross, and we never know when we or a member of our family will need blood.

Along with Red Cross nurses, there will be local doctors, nurses and other volunteers working to make the drawing a success.

The regular donors will be there too, and they would like to see more people participating.

We know Rutherford is working very hard to reach the goal of 100 units. Andy Giaconi of Post 77 is also co-chairman for the drive.

EYESORE CLEANUP—Two Hancock County trustees, left, collect all types of litter at the foot of the Bay St. Louis U.S.-90 bridge Friday. Lt. Russell Watts, far right, chats with Frank Richard about the project. Numerous complaints have been received by the chamber over the years about the eyesore at the bridge which includes large stones for roadbed protection. The area was covered with litter, briars and weeds. Watts said he had seven trustees helping on the project which removed a large truck load of debris. The crew reported seeing several snakes in the area. Weedeaters, lawnmowers, sling blades, rakes, and good muscle were used to complete the task. The trustees normally work the Hancock County Farm which is now completely cultivated and the men are now being used to help remove some of the litter from U.S.-90 and Beach Boulevard, Sheriff Ronald Peterson said. We appreciate the efforts by the trustees. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Capital improvement plan will satisfy long-term needs

There is a crisis in Mississippi that threatens every citizen of this state—we have public facilities that are literally falling apart.

A number of classrooms and even buildings in our higher education system are so run down or ill equipped they cannot be used.

We have parks in serious need of repair and improvements.

Mississippi is so strapped for public facilities, that you—the taxpayers—pay $5.4 million every year to rent space. Even if the rent did not go up one penny, that would amount to $64.8 million in rent by the year 2000, and at the end of that time Mississippi would have nothing to show for it.

Do we really want to spend our money that way? Do we really want to hobble along, year after year, as buildings crumble around us? And do we really want to put our junior college and university students at a disadvantage with students in other states because we fail to give them the buildings and equipment they need?

I believe the answer is no. Earlier this year, I proposed a capital improvements plan that will give us what we need to compete and protect the investment we already have in capital improvements.

In fact, during the regular 1989 legislative session, the Mississippi House and Senate strongly endorsed a capital improvements plan. Unfortunately, that plan caught by the end of the session before differences could be ironed out.

I plan to give lawmakers another opportunity to complete action on this issue.

Mississippi can afford these projects. In fact, we cannot afford not to do these projects.

Under the capital improvements plan, Mississippi would issue bonds to renovate our existing facilities, or buy or build new ones. The cost of the bonds would be paid over the life of the buildings—just like you do when you buy a house.

The whole reason for this capital improvements program is to give Mississippi a sensible, long-term approach to meeting our needs.

Terrible things happen when we don't have a plan for maintaining and building the public facilities we need.

For example, the 15-story Woolfolk State Office Building had to be shut down one day last year because of the failure of the building's electrical system, which had needed replacement for some time. More than 1,000 state employees were sent home at taxpayers' expense.

At the University of Southern Mississippi, a dormitory for honor students had to be boarded up. It was simply considered too dangerous. And many of our university buildings have such bad roof leaks that furniture and the building interiors are being ruined.

Without a capital improvements plan, we lose in other ways. We lose money to rent, fail to provide the first-class facilities needed to turn out first-class students and we lessen the quality of life for our citizens.

HOMETOWN NEWS
From The Capitol CityBy Mississippi
Reporting Service

Passage of a watered down government reorganization bill and a $1.9 billion general fund budget were among the most significant items passed last week.

Sen. Margaret (Wootsie) Tate voted with the winning side to pass the reorganization bill.

A centerpiece of Gov. Ray Mabus' legislative agenda, the final reorganization bill fails to give the governor much more control over state agencies. Mabus said his original plan would save $60 million, while savings in the final version are estimated at only around $4 million.

Rep. J. P. Compretta backed a successful bill that will require several dozen local school districts to raise local property taxes. The increase will raise expenditure per student in those poorer districts closer to the state average.

The legislature told Atty. Gen. Mike Moore that they don't want him suing the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on flood control projects. The restriction, included in the funding bill for Moore's office, is probably unconstitutional, even some legislative backers say.

The Senate killed a bill that would have required landlords to provide minimally acceptable housing for their tenants. Senators were flooded by calls from realtors, who said the regulations were too restrictive and that local ordinances already provide sufficient protection.

The penalty for drunk driving will be tougher, thanks to a bill Mabus signed into law last week. The new law increases fines and closes a loophole that had allowed some convicted drivers off easily.

Failure to report child abuse could result in a misdemeanor as a result of a bill passed last week.

Mississippi will be among a number of states competing for a wayport, the legislature decreed. The wayport is a regional airport being considered by Congress as a way to reduce crowding at urban airports.

A plan to float bonds to cover a massive program of construction and renovation of state buildings still has a chance to be revived as the legislature grinds to a close.

Though Sunday, April 2, was scheduled to be the final day of the session, the deadline has been extended. It is expected that the coming week will be the last one for the regular session.

HOUSE

HB 659. This watered-down version of Gov. Ray Mabus' government reorganization proposal passed the House by a vote of 77 to 42 with two absent or not voting and one voting present. Compretta, yes.

SB2254. Establishes equity funding for school districts throughout the state. It will mean an increase in local taxes in about a dozen school districts. It passed the House by a vote of 96 to 23 with three absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

HB 1428. The legislators inserted language in this funding bill to prevent the attorney general from spending money on a suit against the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The bill was passed because it failed to get enough votes to recommit to conference. The vote to recommit was 54 to 67 with one absent or not voting. Compretta, no.

A no vote to recommit is a vote of approval for the actual appropriations conference report.

SENATE

HB 659. This watered-down version of Gov. Ray Mabus' government reorganization proposal passed the Senate 37 to 12 with 2 absent or not voting. Taylor, yes; Tate, yes.

HB 208. Would have established basic landlord and tenant rights. It failed by a vote of 11 to 33 with three absent or not voting with two pairs. Taylor, no; Tate, no.

HCR 96. This bill proposes an amendment to the state constitution that stops the legislators from electing a state librarian. Voters now must approve the amendment at the next general election. It passed by a vote of 26 to 24 with one absent or not voting. Taylor, no; Tate, no.

SCR 513. This resolution would allow several issues to be lumped into one constitutional amendment. It would make it easier to make drastic changes in the constitution. The resolution passed by a vote of 40 to nine with 2 absent or not voting. Taylor, no; Tate, no.

SB 2254. Establishes equity funding for school districts throughout the state. It will mean an increase in local taxes in about a dozen school districts. This bill passed by a vote of 46 to 2 with 3 absent or not voting. Taylor, yes; Tate, yes.

Sen. Wayne Burkes vacated his Senate for another elected position and therefore was not included in any of the above votes.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi
Economic Council

M/E/C

A bill has been approved by a Congressional subcommittee that would raise the minimum wage over three years from the present $3.35 per hour to $4.65 per hour by 1991.

However, President Bush has indicated he will veto any measure raising minimum wage above $4.24 per hour.

The bill, expected to come before the full House of Representatives next week, is similar to a measure passed by the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

The Bush administration has proposed increasing the minimum wage to $4.25 per hour over three years and has introduced a training wage provision which would allow the minimum wage to remain at $3.35 per hour for all newly hired workers' first six months on the job.

The business community remains opposed to the minimum wage increase, due to the effect it will have on those it is designed to help.

A Clemson University study has determined that a higher minimum wage will cost the nation as many as 750,000 jobs, and teenagers will lose 56 percent of all the eliminated jobs.

A higher minimum wage would affect workers with the fewest job skills on the lowest rung of the ladder.

A study by the National Chamber Foundation concluded that a higher minimum wage would raise inflation by a full percent, and that annual output of the U.S. economy would be reduced by $28 billion.

According to a University of Chicago study, the "ripple effect"—which will increase wages above the minimum to keep pay differentials between workers and supervisors—will cost American business $48 billion a year.

The time to act is now—inform your Congressman that a minimum wage increase will only hurt those it is supposed to help.

In a world that is changing faster than ever before, it is nice to see somebody working toward remembering the past.

Although the annual garden club pilgrimages are not my favorite thing to cover each year because I end up having fun and don't want to go back to the office, I'm delighted to see more people taking the tours.

Some people think these events are for little old ladies who like plants, tea parties and inspecting other people's homes, but I see a lot more when I look at a pilgrimage.

I see the same thing when I look at a historical society meeting, a committee trying to preserve an old tree with a legend attached to it or a couple restoring an old house. I see people trying to keep our heritage from being forgotten.

I, like many other people, am fascinated with things and stories of the past. History wasn't always my favorite subject in high school but I liked it. What I really loved, though, were the stories about local history—tales about how communities like Soso and Hot Coffee got their names, or about the out-laws Sullivan and Copeland.

Had I been fortunate enough to grow up in Hancock County, those stories would probably have been about pirates, General Jackson and long-ago hurricanes.

Personally, I was pleased to see the courthouse on the Bay-Waveland Garden Club's tour because, silly as it sounds, certain architectural details inside the main hall have fascinated me for a long time. I first saw it when I "auditioned" for my job at The Sea Coast Echo by attending a supervisors' meeting and I wanted to look at it again and again.

If I ever build a house, it will be a decorator's dream or maybe his nightmare; I am just nuts about the floor tile in that section of the courthouse, and I'll send him looking for the same thing.

Every year, I have been pleased with the homes I have visited. The older they are and the more that is known about them, the better I like them. I believe local history dies with people. Older people are the ones who know the most accurate version of history; they saw it. Somewhere in this county you can still find people who remember the first airplane they ever saw fly over Bay St. Louis, or what the beach looked like before the '47 hurricane. If that isn't recorded now, it will be lost.

I admire people who work to preserve history. It doesn't hit home to you until you meet a child who has never seen a television with tubes instead of circuit boards; I felt things change too quickly the day I met a little girl who didn't remember black-and-white television sets, even though they still exist.

Maybe I'm just naturally curious about the past. When I go to an antique shop and find something I want to buy, my first question is "What do you know about this?"

My most cherished possessions are things with a personal history to them. They are just little things, like the scarf my great-grandmother owned, but they mean more than "just things."

Knowing about them gives me a pride in them that wouldn't be there under other circumstances, just as knowing about a small community like Bay St. Louis or Waveland gives any resident more pride in his home.

The past is something to inspire pride and not something to be forgotten in the mad rush to the future, where the type of pens we use to write now will probably be obsolete in a decade and where a candy bar will eventually cost $1.95.

Those garden club ladies, historical societies and all the others involved in the area's annual pilgrimages know about that pride, and I commend them for helping to preserve it.

Mauffray joins election for councilman at large

Conrad Mauffray has announced his candidacy for Bay St. Louis councilman-at-large in the May 2 city election.

Mauffray, a resident of 210 Union Street, has been employed for 36 years as comptroller for Coast Electric Power Association.

He is a graduate of Kiln High School and International Accountants Society of Chicago Correspondence Schools and has taken accounting classes at Loyola University, law courses at University of Mississippi and real estate courses at University of Southern Mississippi.

He is a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, a 40-year member of its choir and former parish council member. He is married with five children and 11 grandchildren.

Mauffray has served the community in a variety of ways. He was a member and treasurer of the Hancock General Hospital Board of Trustees for 20 years, Bay St. Louis Municipal Election Commission for 16 years and Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee for 12 years.

He was presented an outstanding community service award in 1978 by American Legion Post 77 in Waveland.

Mauffray serves on the Private Industry Council for Hancock and Harrison Counties; Waveland Civic Association, for which he is a past treasurer and parade grand marshal; Hancock County Chamber of Commerce; Bay St. Louis Rotary Club; St. Stanislaus Sideline Club; Senior Citizens of Waveland, Inc.; and Hancock County A.A.R.P.

"I want to provide the leadership, good planning, positive thinking and cooperation needed, so that Bay St. Louis will be the ideal place to live and rear a family," the candidate said.

His goals include continued upgrading of the educational system, promotion of law enforcement efforts against drugs and crime, a cleaner and more attractive city, better recreational facilities for young people, augmenting tourist trade with small businesses that can provide local employment and promoting cultural awareness and related facilities in our area.

"I have never held an elected political office, but now I wish to do so," Mauffray stated. "My many years of experience dealing with business, civic and human relation encounters provide me with excellent qualifications to by your next councilman at large."

Health Dept. implements 'no smoking' policy

The Mississippi State Board of Health has adopted a policy that prohibits smoking inside any Department of Health facility.

State Health Officer Alton B. Cobb, MD, MPH, recommended and board members endorsed the following:

"Smoking, to include cigarettes, cigars and pipes, shall not be permitted inside any facility owned or operated by the Mississippi State Department of Health, including its district and county facilities."

"This policy will also protect the 85 percent of health department employees statewide who are non-smokers from passive inhalation of cigarette smoke generated by the minority of health department employees who do smoke," he said.

In 1988 MSDH employee survey, results showed 15 percent were current smokers, 18 percent were former smokers, and 67 percent never smoked at all.

The 'no smoking' policy became effective April 1. Trained MSDH staff members are offering smoking cessation tips to any smokers who would like to quit.

"We will be using the American Red Cross Fresh Start Cessation Program to help our employees," said Ellen Jones, director of health promotion and education, MSDH.

"The six-hour program will be held in all nine districts between Apr. 1 and the last week in May," Jones said. "We think it complements our 'no smoking' policy in that we are trying to offer full support to our employees who want to quit."

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Sunday dinners in Springtime in my "growing up" days happily signaled the return of platters of tender, young spring chicken, fried or baked or otherwise, to the table, along with the freshest of Spring vegetables, and that marvelous finale of fresh strawberries—usually strawberry shortcake!

Times and progress have changed a lot of things, and we now have all sorts of edibles available almost all around the year—but, you know, I think something's been lost in the process, for I well remember how our winter-jaded plates were revived by those marvelous foods of Springtime.

All of which finally brings us to some of the special values at our local markets just now.

Winn-Dixie's special on strawberries starts the mouth-watering for a luscious strawberry shortcake. Whoever invented shortcake is worthy of a crown!

You can, of course, put this together quickly with sponge cake or sponge cups from the store, but as I'm a short-short-short-unsweetened biscuit dough shortcake devotee, I'll give you my recipe. (And, of course, there's biscuit mix to make the task easier.) Here's:

OLD-FASHIONED STRAWBERRY SHORT-CAKE

2 cups flour
3 tsp. baking powder
4 Tbsp. shortening
Dash of salt
Sufficient water to make a stiff dough
3 cups strawberries
Thick cream or whipped cream

Sugar to your taste
Make a rather stiff dough—sometimes you may have to add a bit more water if the mixture's too "doughy." Roll it, Old South "hoe cake" style, about the size of a cake plate, and about a half inch thick.

Bake in a 400-degree oven till done, and then, with your largest and sharpest knife (which, of course, you've heated ahead of time) split the "cake" and drizzle butter lavishly over each layer, just as you do hot biscuits fresh from the oven.

Distribute three cups of strawberries, halved or quartered, at random, sugared awhile to your taste, onto the layers, and bring it to the table. Serve with thick cream poured atop each serving at the very last minute, to keep the dough crisp—or you may prefer whipped cream.

Winn-Dixie is also featuring pork loins this week.

And, whole fryers are stars this week at Jitney Jungle. Halved and broiled, they are delicious. And, baked whole, they're also good, good! Try this recipe, quick and simple to prepare, but elegant. It's from Jesse's Book of Creole and Deep South Recipes, and a standby at dinner tables on our Coast. Here's:

BAKED SPRING CHICKEN WITH CRAB APPLES

2 plump young fryers (2½ to 3 lbs. whole)
Pepper and salt
1/3 stick (2½ Tbsp.) butter, plus butter for greasing chicken
1 can or jar spiced crab apples
2/3 large onion
1/2 cup white corn syrup
4 slices bacon
1/4 cup sherry

Wash and dry chickens and salt and pepper thoroughly inside and out, rubbing into the skin. Grease inside and out, preferably with butter. Salt and pepper the giblets and drop inside, along with a generous lump (1/2 stick) of butter, and fill the remainder of the cavity with whole spiced crabapples, using a half can or jar of apples to each chicken.

Add a third of a large onion to each cavity, and pour into each opening half of the corn syrup. Close with skewers and tie shut. Crisscross two slices of bacon atop each chicken breast, to add flavor and keep the young chickens from drying out too fast.

Place in baking pan, along with the syrup from the apple can or jar, spices and all. Add the sherry, and bake in a slow oven (300 to 325 degrees) about two hours, until the chicken is tender and golden brown, basting occasionally with the spicy syrup. Reason for adding the corn syrup is that the apples, when baked in the chicken, lose some of their sweetness. The syrup in which they are packed is tart and just sweet enough to make an ideal sauce. Garnish with additional apples if you wish. (Four to six servings).

Cancer prevention, information seminar hosted by HMC

April is National Cancer Control Month. To observe this month's focus, Hancock Medical Center will host "Controlling Cancer Risk: Eating and Environment" on Thursday, April 13 at 7 p.m. in HMC's cafeteria.

This program is about cancer prevention and will provide information about our own environmental factors which could cause cancer and the importance of nutrition in the fight against this deadly disease.

Jamie Rodenbaugh, registered dietician with Hancock Medical Center, will present a segment on "cancer-wise" eating.

Included will be hints about which foods are best for preventing cancer, and information on how to prepare them. Some of these healthy foods will also be available for sampling at the program.

Fredrick Cosler, Ph.D., will also be featured speaker. He is the chief scientist for the Environmental Protection Agency's Gulf of Mexico Program and will offer information about environmental risks in the coastal area and the safeguards being made against those risks.

For more information about cancer control, or to make reservations for the program, call Hancock Medical Center at 467-9081 ext. 2180.

Summer science camp hosted by Perkinson

Gulf Coast Community College's Perkinson Campus will host the 25th annual summer science camp Monday, June 19 through Friday, June 23.

Dr. David Schwab, camp director and Perkinson Campus biology instructor, said the camp is open to students in grades seven through 12.

He said the demand for the camp has grown and that a second session may be offered this year.

Those attending will receive round-the-clock supervision, Schwab said.

The camp will include a "drug day," with representatives from the Harrison County Sheriff's Department discussing recreational drugs and alcohol.

Students will take field trips to Alabama's Dauphin Island Marine Education facility and to the polymer science and chemistry departments at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

Reproduction will also be discussed, and students will view the film "The Miracle of Life."

Cost to attend is $99. That includes housing in air-conditioned dormitories, three meals each day (except Monday and Friday, when two meals will be served), workshop materials and use of campus facilities.

Application deadline is Monday, June 5. Students may request information from their science teachers or from the Perkinson Campus science department at 928-5211, extension 343.

Adult CPR course offered

The American Red Cross is offering an adult cardiopulmonary resuscitation course at the Hancock County Civil Defense Conference Room on April 17 from 7 to 9 p.m.

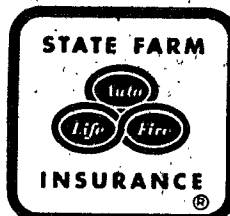

This course will include one rescuer CPR, obstructed airway and rescue breathing.

Class size is limited so participants need to pre-register and pick up the book at the Red Cross office located in the annex behind the Hancock County Courthouse on 129 Court Street, Bay St. Louis.

Cost of the class is $10. For further information call 467-7609.

SGT. HODA

Sergeant Jim Hoda with the Mississippi Air National Guard was a guest speaker recently in the family living classes at Bay Senior High School.

He presented a program he developed on getting a job. He covered such topics as career planning, resumes, job applications and job interviews. He stressed that attitude was one of the most important factors contributing to a person's success.

The family living classes are taught by Mrs. Janet Roche.

We offer every option

but one.

And that is...baby boy or baby girl. Baby options are confusing, to say the least. At the Regional Women's Center, we offer parents-to-be every possible option, from beepers for daddy to 20 hours of free housekeeping once the baby is born.

We even provide you and your husband with a free candlelight dinner on the first night of parenthood.

Plus free pre-natal exercise classes. A free infant CPR course, for safety's sake. And a selection of preparation classes for the entire family, from siblings to parents.

Beautiful Beginnings is a high-quality obstetrics program that provides all you need to keep tension to a minimum and the indescribable joy of birth to a maximum. All for a price that will let you start your child's college education fund on Day One. Where to give birth to your baby is an important option you do have. Opt for a beautiful beginning at Slidell Memorial Hospital.

Hancock branches to celebrate National Library Week April 10-16

"The Library has the Answer—What's the Question?" is the slogan of the Hancock County Library System's 1989 observance of National Library Week, set for April 10-16.

The goal for the week is to make more visible the wide variety of information services provided by public libraries in the community.

People throughout the state, nation and in local communities have given the library a lot of credit for helping them achieve success in their particular endeavor.

And it's because they've realized that the library has a lot to offer every individual's need for information.

Libraries either have or can get highly specialized information for special interest groups or very general information like a telephone number. But it doesn't stop there!

Libraries can provide you

St. Louis,

This display will show the

"Libraries are more than just book-filled buildings. They have the resources to provide the public with answers—answers to questions of every description, ranging from the highly technical to the very vague."

with answers on how to dress for an interview, how to make small talk at that big party, how to keep your car in good running order, how to fill out your income tax returns and much more. The possibilities are unlimited—you only have to ask.

As part of the observance for National Library Week, the Hancock County Public Library will present a display at the main branch on Hwy. 90 in Bay various formats for information available at libraries today, such as hard bound and paperback books, large print books, talking books for the blind and handicapped, microfilm, microfiche, filmstrips, video, audio cassettes and CDROM discs (the latest technology for storing books and periodicals).

Categories available include sports, medical, history, fiction, non-fiction, children's, research, gardening, cooking, weather, phone books, and much more.

Other events to celebrate National Library Week include a special story hour featuring Alice Ladner of Coast Electric as Raggedy Ann on Wednesday, April 12 at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis branch and Friday, April 14 at 10:30 a.m. at the Waveland branch.

This special hour is for regular story hour participants and will include the story "Raggedy Ann's Summer Safety," along with two other stories, a tea party and various handouts.

All branches of the Hancock County Library System will be giving away bookmarks and special National Library Week book bags. The staff of the main library will dress as book characters on Wednesday, April 12.

More information on National Library Week may be obtained by contacting the Bay St. Louis branch at 467-5282; the Waveland branch at 467-9240; or the Kiln Library at 255-1724.

Zaninelli, Mendelssohn featured on Concert Hall

Works by Mississippi composer Luigi Zaninelli and German composer Felix Mendelssohn are featured on the next edition of PRM's "Mississippi Concert Hall," Thursday, April 13 at 9 a.m. with a repeat broadcast Sunday, April 16, at 1 p.m.

University of Southern Mississippi composer-in-residence Luigi Zaninelli's "Autumn Music" is performed by USM faculty saxophonist Lawrence Gwozda and the Meridian Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Vernon Raines.

The Jackson Symphony Orchestra with guest conductor Donald Thulean perform Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 5 in D, the "Reformation." This performance was recorded Feb. 23, 1988.

"Mississippi Concert Hall" is produced by William Fulton. Public Radio in Mississippi, a division of Mississippi ETV, is broadcast on FM frequency 90.3, Biloxi.

Some sound advice from Tom Bosley...

"...you'll hear more clearly and no one will see the difference with the new Presidential from Electone!"

• All wires, cords, and tubes are eliminated.

• A custom designed instrument that is cosmetically attractive.

• All neatly hidden in the ear.

Find out how much better your hearing can be, just by calling for a demonstration and private hearing test of the Presidential from Electone!

Mississippi Symphony Orchestra pays tribute to Eudora Welty

"Happy Birthday, Miss Welty, happy birthday to you..."

On April 13, beloved Mississippi author Eudora Welty will celebrate her 80th birthday. In her honor on April 2, the Mississippi Symphony Orchestra presented a gala concert, which will be broadcast at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, April 13, on Mississippi ETV and stereo simulcast on Public Radio in Mississippi (PRM).

The emcee for the evening is journalist Roger Mudd, congressional correspondent for 'The MacNeil-Lehrer News-Hour' and a personal friend of Miss Welty. Colman Pearce is the conductor for the evening.

The highlight of 'The Mississippi Symphony Salutes Eudora Welty' is a specially commissioned work by Mississippi composer James Scater titled 'Concerto for Orchestra, Images from Welty.' Scater is on the faculty of Mississippi College.

The evening culminates with mezzo Lester Senter Wilson, a 150-member combined choir from Millsaps College, Belhaven College, Tougaloo College and Mississippi College joining the audience in singing an enthusiastic 'Happy Birthday' to Miss Welty.

To capture all the high points of this gala evening, tune your television to ETV and turn the volume down and tune your radio to PRM and turn the volume up. PRM is broadcast at FM frequency 90.3, Biloxi.

This half-hour special may also be seen on ETV at 6 p.m. Sunday, April 15. It will not be simulcast on PRM at that time.

Following the concert on the 13th at 9, ETV will present a special encore broadcast of 'The American Experience' documentary about Miss Welty, 'One Writer's Beginnings.'

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

You make a difference

Has anyone told you lately that you make a difference? "A difference in what?" you may be tempted to ask.

A difference. Period. You are important enough, appreciated enough and valued enough to make a difference in the world. First of all, you make a difference with God. But, then, that is not extraordinary, since there is no discrimination by God.

Because of God's taken-for-granted attitude, you do not need to hear that you make a difference with God. What you need to hear is that you make a difference among your fellow humans.

Yes, you do make a difference among your fellow human beings, beginning with me. Believe me when I say that there would be a perceptible vacuum in my life without you. In fact, I can only imagine how less full life would be were you no longer here.

Not that my life would be completely empty if you were not a part of it, for there are many other children, women and men who are a great blessing to me and to all others around them. They do help to fulfill my life in so many ways.

Notwithstanding that, you are a vital cog in my life's machine, one without which this machine would run unevenly and would move as if impeded and burdened by some unseen force.

Yes, you do make a difference in my life, because you are a powerful link to what is meaningful in people, showing me how material things have a value only inasmuch as they relate to and enhance the relationships of human beings.

Never mind that you are merely one of a thousand, yes, of millions of human being who enter the threshold of my space in life. You are noticed. I am fully aware that you are there and that you do indeed make a difference distinct from that of all the others.

You make a difference because I consider you one wonderful human being in spite of your defects and shortcomings. The force of your positive influence on me is by no means cancelled or even neutralized by the shortfall brought on by your faults. Without condoning anything negative in you, I accept you wholesale.

It is no accident that your positive effect on me is related to your deep faith in God, to the enduring hope which is your heritage as a sibling of Jesus and therefore a child of the resurrection, and, finally, to the incredibly prodigious love which has proceeded from the Most Holy Trinity through you to me.

You do make a difference, dear one, because I see in you what my earthbound eyes cannot see in the invisible God. As I have told you before, since transcendence puts God completely out of my reach, you are my theophany, God's appearance to me, which Jesus first gave us in Bethlehem so many centuries ago.

While all of us would rather have Jesus be our theophany, Jesus has returned to the bosom of the Most Holy Trinity. Instead of his own overwhelmingly wonderful self, he has left each of us to do as he did, to be God's image to one another.

Therefore, you do make a jolting difference in my life. Like it or not, you are my theophany, left specially for me by none other than Jesus himself. It must be clear to you, consequently, that my vision of God will be forever distorted without you.

No wonder, then, that you make a difference in the way I feel, once I see you during the day, or even when I just think of you.

Yes, you do make a difference in every phase, in every circumstance of my physical, mental, emotional and spiritual life. I thank God each day, every moment for sending you into my life.
